

Goku and chi chi at night in front of a camp fire

Chi chi talking about how she killed a plant giant terrorizing a village, trained in the arts of three different martial arts and trained the following years after Goku saved her and yet she can't take care of a child and how tiring it's all been trying not only to raise her kids but be a good (. ). For then and yet not understanding how to and stressing out making her mad

Goku hearing all of this responding quietly that he's sorry

Chi chi scared asking if she said it all out loud and Goku asking "did you say something out loud?"

"N-no it was nothing, paranting is great! It's super easy and Goten is doing fantastic... just... just go back to training with Vegeta... I'm sure he's waiting for you"

"Oh... okay! See you then, oh also don't forget to call me when the plants need watering mkey? Mkey"

Goku turns around while holding his fingers on his head

He stops smiling and tilts his head back slightly while opening his mouth wanting to say something but instead turning back in front of him and teleporting

To Yardrat

If he can't stay strong AND support his family at least he can clone himself and have the clone train for him

He thought the clone would be okay with it but the clone wanted to help just as much making him unable to focus on training and instead mostly thinking about how to be a better parent and making sure to ignore all of whise's suggestions because he raised Beerus the most lazy annoyance in existence